

Logmaster at Budapest University of Technology and Economics! 🇮🇪

On 21 November 2024, the Budapest University of Technology and Economics (BME) hosted a dynamic event to showcase the upcoming Logmaster Project. With 45 students in attendance, the session highlighted the project's main goals, key achievements, and innovative learning materials.

Participants engaged in a logistics and supply chain quiz, followed by a hands-on group activity exploring metal degradation during storage—pairing real-world visuals with technical descriptions.

Everyone left with a certificate of attendance and a gift package — but most importantly, with new insights and enthusiasm for the future of logistics!
