LOGMASTER Project Presentation in Paris

On December 15th, during an ELA Lab workshop held in Paris, the LOGMASTER project was introduced to an audience of professors and industry professionals specializing in logistics and supply chain management. The session provided an opportunity to showcase the project's objectives, ongoing activities, and innovative approaches to digital education in logistics.

Participants engaged in discussions on how the project's outputs—such as training modules and case studies—can support both academic teaching and professional development, reinforcing the link between research, education, and practice in the logistics field.
